FEATURED RELEASE

The Men Who Made Us Thin

This series examines the connections between obesity and weight loss, and confronts some of those who are making a fortune from people's desire to become thinner.

NEW PROGRAMMING

In Search of Science

Professor Brian Cox introduces his heroes and visits the places where they made their discoveries, recreating their experiments and examining their legacy.

The Making of Merkel

This programme reveals how her astonishing rise to power has been on her own terms: as a woman, a former East German, a research scientist and a defender of Western democracy.

History of the Ottoman Empire

Recounts the epic story of one of the largest empires in world history from its origins in the 13th century through to its bloody final throes on the battlefields of WWI.

India: A Dangerous Place to be a Woman

British Asian journalist Radha Bedi travels to India to uncover the reality of life for young women there, six months after a student was brutally gang-raped on a bus.

Defeating the Hackers

How a global geek squad is using simple maths to keep our bank details safe by building a whole new kind of computer - all to try to stay one step ahead of the hackers.

Supermarket Secrets

Joining supermarket insiders, we go to the heart of how they bring us the food we love to eat across four of the biggest events in their calendars: Easter, summer barbecue, Halloween and Christmas.
