FEATURED RELEASE

Fry's Planet Word

Renowned wordsmith Stephen Fry is the perfect guide for this fascinating exploration of language in all its forms: from cutting edge linguistic research to the glories of world literature.

NEW PROGRAMMING

Origins of Us

We have uncovered the secrets of the atom and travelled to the moon. But how did humans come to be so successful? This series explores the anatomical changes that have given us, and our ancestors, the edge.

Mark Zuckerberg: Inside Facebook

With an exclusive interview with Zuckerberg himself and access to Facebook's offices in Silicon Valley and its most senior staff, this documentary tells the story of Zuckerberg's extraordinary rise.

Junk Food Mums

Junk Food Mums avoids the judgemental tone that can surround the topic of eating habits and body shape, focusing on three different families and following the everyday issues they face with diets and attitudes to obesity.

Wikileaks - Secrets & Lies

This is the story of how the UK's Guardian newspaper turned the original Wiki material from a morass of unreadable documents into the dramatic succession of calibrated and researched scoops it became. Using first hand, exclusive interviews with those involved, this film documents the story of the biggest data spillage in history.

Art of America

The series begins with the early Puritans, majestic 19th century landscapes, and a persistent paradox in American history - an ideology rooted in God and nature, but a reality steeped in blood and the destruction of the natural world.

Party's Over - How the West Went Bust

In this dramatic and controversial series, renowned business correspondent Robert Peston interviews politicians, bankers and economists around the world and suggests the financial crash was just a symptom of the seismic economic shift that was on its way.
